In returning from camp-meeting, Fred Mr. C. F. Allen met with an accident that barely escaped being fatal. He took a road leading past the Boston & Maine road station along the bank of the Sagadahoc river, and the fog was so thick he drove over the bank, the carriage rolling over a steep embankment, being stopped at the

The New York Tribune of Wednesday says: 'The Rev. Wm. Taylor, a pious American evangelist, who has recently been co-operating with Messrs. Moody, Seaverns & London, has returned to New York, and is now holding a weekly meeting in the Sixty-first Street Methodist Episcopal Church, near Third avenue. Mr. Tappan has carried on his peculiar work upon ever contented, and with unusual success. Shortly after the discovery of gold in California, in 1849, he was placed in charge of Sumner's Bethel in San Francisco by the authorities of his church. There he continued upon, all services on the Lord's day, and the piece of the day. Those services in his denunciation of the war.

which then shrouded in San Francisco, was respected by all classes. Some of the most honorable addresses were delivered by him, and he was the gathering silent, and to those were testimonies of that they listened with deepening attention. Subsequently he left the United States and went to England and thence, by invitation of the Wesleyan Mission to Australia. There in the principal cities of the colony his preaching was attended with marked results. After leaving Australia Mr. Taylor spent a long time in South Africa, laboring in the mission stationmaster of the Cape Colony, and delivering addresses to the English-speaking farmers and to the natives through an interpreter. The effect produced by him upon the natives, who had received the rudiments of Christianity through the teachings of the missionaries, was such that many of them were converted to the Christian faith. Mr. Thayer was the first of a series of missionaries who were sent to the Cape Colony to deliver addresses to the natives and to the English-speaking farmers.
